The American Dahlia Society announces the 2012 winner of the Stanley Johnson medal – Lakeview Glow – an exquisite small, incurved cactus, yellow dahlia. This medal is presented annually by the ADS to the dahlia variety with the greatest number of higher awards – awards above blue ribbons – that have been accumulated during the previous season of flower shows across the United States and Canada. The award was designed to recognize excellence in the growing and showing of dahlias at the national level. A variety is eligible to win this medal only once.

Lakeview Glow, introduced in 2010, was hybridized by Bernie Wilson from Snohomish, Washington. Wilson, a retired firefighter, has grown and exhibited prize winning dahlias for over 30 years. All of his dahlia introductions begin with the prefix, Lakeview, a tribute to the view from his backyard. Lakeview Glow was also chosen by the Puget Sound Dahlia Association as their dahlia of the year,

The following nurseries have Lakeview Glow listed for 2013:
